

Lyrics Nadador

Jangadeiro/Dudu Tucci (Track 10)

Flower of Yemanja, taken to the sea, the wave will take the flower to you, Doia
Flower of Yemanja, taken to the sea, the wave will take the flower to you, Doia

The wave comes from the sea and pounds the rock until it breaks, a new life sets sail
The wave comes from the sea and brings dreams into reality, and everything as one begins to move.

You breathe light, clear waves of Yemanja and life consigns dreams to the swell of the ocean. And has that sailor learned to sail? Into the wave, out of the wave, it is all an awakening.

eh eh eh eh eh.....

Row, rower, row over the depths of the sea...row, rower, row over the depths of the sea.....

Jangadeiro goes out to sea, never knowing whether he will come back, the ocean is strong and man is weak and the swell is maddening.

The sun is high, burning, my head becomes a sea, all blue and all clear, the ocean is a breathing body. Yemanja or Janaina, Inae, Mermaid of the Waves....am I the jangadeiro who casts his net in your ocean?

The wave comes from the sea and pounds the rock until it breaks, a new life sets sail
